A CAR AND A WAGON.

A Collision With a State Street Car—A Mule Killed—A Coal Cart's Experience.
One of the cars of the New Haven Street Railway company struck and terribly injured a mule, one of a pair belonging to James Boyle of Cedar Hill Saturday evening shortly after 6 o'clock. The accident happened on State street, near Wall.

The mules were attached to a heavy wagon and were driven by John Hazenbach. Hazenbach was driving them up State street at a fairly lively rate of speed when an electric car passed him. Immediately after that he directed his mules across the track, apparently for the purpose of turning around. He did not notice that an open car, No. 46, which had just come in from the races on Lake Whitney and was making for the car barn, was followed close upon the car which was preceding it.

Modern Daniel Cavanaugh reversed his power, jammed on the brakes hard and pounded the going for all he was worth. But it was too late. Hazenbach turned his team about as quick as he could, but there was not time enough. The car struck one of the mules on his left flank and knocked the pair down on the ground. The pole of the wagon snapped with their weight.

Dr. J. H. Kelly, the veterinarian, was summoned and found that the animal could not live and it was relieved of its misery. Later the carcass was removed.

The other mule was unhurt. No blame could be attached to the motorman.

A few minutes later as a car coming up State street and was nearing Humphrey street got on to the track, the driver having endeavored to cross the track before the car could get to him. Luckily the conductor had pulled the bell to stop the car for some ladies who wanted to get off at the crossing, but the car's momentum was yet only a little abated. The motorman did everything in his power to stop the car and did stop it in time to save a collision with the car, but the suddenness of the stop was such that the passengers who were standing up were jostled about promiscuously. After the scare was over, the passengers thrown against each other mutually apologized and chatted each other and good nature was restored. The driver of the car, who had made all the trouble and really had a very narrow escape looked back jauntily at the car and the passengers, tossed his head and exclaimed something about there being no flies on him, as his cart went on down Humphrey street.

THE GOUNDED SOCIETY.

The Gounded society will hold its first rehearsal this evening at 7:45 o'clock at Harmonie hall, Gounded's "Redemption" being the work to be taken up. A trial of voices will be held at 7 o'clock, when all new applicants should appear. There are less vacancies than usual this year. The society promises to be stronger than ever this year.

Successful Hunters.

Mr. Edward Malley and his friend, Mr. John V. Higgins, a New York banker, returned to this city Saturday evening after a short hunting trip in the vicinity of New Haven. They brought with them six partridges, four woodcock, and two quails. Mr. Malley brought home two of the partridges alive.

To Contain Forty Rooms.

The Willis Cooper property located at 110 Wall street was sold to S. W. Hart, the superintendent of the John Hancock Insurance company. The lot is 40 feet front by 115 feet deep. The price paid for the property is said to have been about $7,000. Plans for a students' apartment house on the site, to contain about forty rooms, will be prepared. The new building will be four stories high.

May Have Double Service.

On account of the rapid improvement in the business situation the New Haven Steamboat company will probably be able to continue its double service this winter. Commodore Richard Peck, the secretary of the company, said that if business continued as good as at present, two boats would run all winter. The company is now doing a very satisfactory freighting business and while the passenger traffic falls off to some extent at this season, it is up to the usual average. The company has contracted for two new boilers for the steamer C. H. Northam and they are now building in New York. The boat will be laid off in January for receiving the new boilers and other improvements and the Continental will run in her place. Commodore Peck says that when the Northam has her new boilers she will be as fast as ever.

The dimensions of the building will be 43x107 feet. It will have a stage 30x40 feet, gallery and five dressing rooms. The stage will be equipped with scenery, and the roof of the stage will be carried up at the back to give room for the flies. There will be a 20-foot lobby in front, and the hall will have a seating capacity of about 1,200 people. The front will be of red brick with wood cornice, and a slated gable roof with dormer windows will be put on. The cost of the building will be about $10,000.

A grand concert with Shakespearian readings, will be given in the Grand avenue Baptist church Thursday evening by the choir under the direction of H. H. Palmer, chorister. ## THE MERIDEN RAILROAD.

The Purchase of the Road by the Consolidated Road Generally Credited in Meriden.

Meriden, Oct. 20.—It is very generally believed here that the Meriden electric railroad has been sold to the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company.

To-night a well known Meriden man said to a reporter that President Douglass of the electric road told him that the deal had been consummated. President Charles P. Clark of the Consolidated railroad was asked to-night if it is true that the company has purchased the property of the Meriden electric railroad. President Clark gave his answer to the question in just six words—"I will neither affirm nor deny."

Quite a good deal of electric road stock is scattered about Meriden. A few of course, Mr. Douglass and his Philadelphia friends own a majority of all the shares.

One of the reasons given to-day for Mr. Douglass' offer to buy the electric road stock held here is that the sale of the property to the Consolidated railroad is nearly completed, but the steam road people want a larger controlling interest than the Douglass people now own and that is why the president is trying to buy up shares.

Ex-Sheriff Tomlinson of Milford and a stranger whose name was not learned were in town yesterday and went over the entire electric railway system. Mr. Tomlinson is believed to be acting in the Consolidated road's interest.

A Meriden man said to-night: The object in buying the electric road is of course self-protection. In the future, there Meriden, New Britain, Middletown, Bristol, Southington and other towns were certain to be connected by a perfect network of trolley lines, that would greatly interfere with steam road traffic. To stop that scheme or have the benefit of it carried out is the reason why the Consolidated road made the purchase.

The electric company's figures on the valuation of the plant are $750,000 including the franchise and Hanover park. The road is capitalized at $1,000,000 and is bonded for $500,000.

ORANGE SCORED ON YALE.

Defenders of the Blue Given a Lively Tussle in Saturday's Game. Several Goals Scored—Freshman Team Defeated Hartford High School.

"Scored against Yale" is one of the chief honors which minor colleges and amateur football teams can have attributed to them, and the latest winner of this honor is the Orange Athletic club eleven.

The two teams lined up on Orange Oval Saturday afternoon and the Orange team won the toss. Yale kicked off and soon Millard of Orange took a forty-yard sprint down the field towards Yale's goal. He was tackled, but by quick work Orange pushed the ball over the line and the goal was kicked, all done only five minutes after time was called.

Thorne then kicked off for Yale, and Dewitt after big gains around left end

STATE ROAD COMMISSIONERS.

Three New Roads to be Final-Hed Soon in Hamden, Portland and Berlin.
One of the improved roads provided for by the action of the last legislature is almost completed.

James H. Macdonald, chairman of the state good roads commission, has been in Hamden the past week, overseeing the construction of the road voted by that town to be laid under the direction of the good roads commission.

The first to be completed will be in Berlin, and is about three-quarters of a mile in length. It is probable that the people of that town will make some sort of a public demonstration in honor of the opening of the road. The road in Portland will also be finished next week.
